Radnor Invades Maroon Field Tomorrow As Teams Clash in 30th Annual Classic

Between twelve and fifteen thousand fans are expected to be on hand tomorrow afternoon to fill every visible nook and cranny of space around the football field as the two traditional foes, Lower Merion and Radnor, face each other across the chalk-ribbed gridiron at Ardmore. For the last two years the teams have battled to a scoreless tie.

This is the thirtieth meeting between the two leading high schools of the Main Line district, and the battle this year should be as hard fought as any of the previous encounters. The two teams are evenly matched, and the eleven which can wheedle the most out of Lady Luck, or the eleven which can produce the most fighting spirit, that is the eleven which will win.

The Maroon has shown a wonderful team spirit this season, one that came up smiling and fighting from behind to win out in more than one battle. They have a powerful, hard-driving offense, and a steady, reliable defense. The Red and White, in turn, has a tricky, open offensive that will score touchdowns at any stage of the game. They do not play the game according to Hoyle, but according to the dictates of their own desires. If they want to throw a pass, they throw it, regardless of the position on the field, or what not, and that is the kind of football that keeps the other team guessing and oftentimes missing.

In Captain Scott and Tip Peters, Coach Adam has two boys with lion hearts. Nothing daunts them; ahead or behind in score, they fight just the same. Parks is a heady quarterback and Mandes is becoming a nifty ground gainer.

Up at Radnor, Coach Prevost has one of the best backs in the suburbs in Captain Lentz. He can kick, throw and carry the ball with the best of them. In Krick, he has one of the best punters in the league. O'Dorisio is a great line crasher.

Lower Merion is stronger in the line, and they sport the best pair of wingmen.

Yes, the fans are in for a great afternoon.

Plan Special Service

Plans have been made for a community church service to be held 10:30 A. M. on Thanksgiving Day, in the Lutheran Church. The sermon will be delivered by the Rev. John Van Ness, pastor of the Presbyterian Church. His subject: "Lest We Forget."

There will be special music. All members of the community are invited to attend.

Shop Early

Local residents are requested by the post office authorities to shop and mail early for Christmas. Parcels to be sent foreign countries and the Western States should be mailed soon to avoid the Christmas rush.

Lower Merion's Leader

Captain "Perk" Scott, fullback of the Lower Merion eleven, who will lead his team against Radnor in the season's annual school boy classic tomorrow. Scott has been a big ground gainer in all Maroon games this season, and is expected to give a good account of himself.

Decide on Vacation Dates at School Board Meeting

The Narberth School's Thanksgiving recess will begin with the close of classes on Wednesday, November 27, and end on Monday morning, December 2, it was announced at the November meeting of the School Board last Friday. The dates for the Christmas holidays were also decided upon. The vacation will begin at the close of classes on Friday, December 20, and school will reconvene on Thursday, January 2, 1930.

The report of the principal, George H. Wilson, indicated that everything was going smoothly at the school. One hundred Normandy poplars will be planted on the western boundary of the school grounds, it was announced.

Punishment of Children Seldom Cures Bad Habits, Says Psychologist, in Address to Mothers' Council

Punishment of children, in an effort to break bad habits, simply does not work in a vast majority of instances, according to Doctor Jessie Taft, well-known psychologist, of Philadelphia, who spoke before the Mothers' Council in the auditorium of the Narberth School on Monday evening.

"At its best," she declared, "punishment is merely treating a symptom and leaving the cause untouched. If the cause remains, it is likely to crop out in other forms of disagreeable behavior. At its worst, punishment is only a way of relieving the feelings of the adult, and oftentimes the parent or teacher who indulges in frequent or severe punishments is more of a prob-

Behind at Half, Maroon Comes to Life to Score Two Touchdowns.

TEAMWORK WAS GOOD

By TOMMY MACKLIN

A football team, wearing the Maroon jerseys of Lower Merion, slumbered through the first half of a game over at Upper Darby last Saturday and awoke at half time to find their fighting opponents leading them by a two to nothing score. Coach Adam dashed some cold water into their faces during half time, whispered some words of wisdom into their ears, and sent them out onto the field quite ready and wide-awake for the second stanza of the contest. When the final whistle blew the score read Lower Merion, 13; Upper Darby, 2.

The way they played during this final half was sufficiently conclusive to the spectators that they were complete masters of the situation. Harry Frazier took Tip Peters' place at halfback and shortly after the kickoff he dashed through tackle for a seven-yard advance and a touchdown. He then

Junior Club Plans to Present Drama

Committee Named After Mrs. Frye Discusses Modern Theatre Trend.

RUMMAGE SALE NOV. 30

Mrs. Henry Frye, whose dramatic ability is well known to Narberth, gave a talk on "The Drama" to the Junior Community Club at their meeting last Thursday. Mrs. Frye voiced the question that is puzzling so many theatre-lovers at the present time as to what will become of the speaking drama, since the advent of the popular "talkies" has already drawn so many of the great artists away from the legitimate stage. One fortunate development, Mrs. Frye is certain, will be an increasing interest in the amateur and the semi-professional production. Numerous "Little Theatre" movements throughout the country point to the truth of this surmise, and since Mrs. Frye assured her listeners that everyone is born with certain dramatic instinct and that the desire to impersonate another's character is inherent in all, it would seem that much hidden talent might soon be brought to light

Police Reporter Contrasts Courtroom and Concert Hall—Finds Latter More Pleasant

The usual contributor of musical news and criticism having been drawn as foreman of the jury in a famous murder trial, it became the duty of a police reporter to take a new assignment—

How great the contrast between this audience and the familiar one of the Magistrate's Courtroom!

In the Courtroom a devastating spirit of strife and dissension fills the air. Those of us who are not there for the business of the Court—the clerk, the police officers, the litigants—are drawn by curiosity. It is sometimes a prurient curiosity, a smutty hope to hear in spoken words the expressions written on back-alley fences by dirty-minded little boys in possession of a piece of chalk.

There is justice of a sort, a rough and ready sifting of the true from the false and a decision, accompanied by a harsh word or two of admonition and the imposition of a fine. But the real spirit of the Courtroom is one of hate, and the laughter, high and ribald, is often at the expense of some one spiritually unarmoured—an agonized soul more desperately in need of friendship now than ever before.

How pleasant, then, to leave the one scene and come upon the other. As the auditorium of the Junior High School begins to fill with the audience of more than a thousand people of the Main Line who will hear this concert, one is struck by the subtle difference between their faces and the faces of the people in the Courtroom. They are apparently the same sort of people, for all classes of society find their way into the Magistrate's Court and

Former Residents of Boro Die Same Day

Charles E. Humphries, Richard H. Wallace Both Served on Council.

WALLACE FIRST HEAD

Two prominent former residents of Narberth, both of whom had served as president of the Borough Council, died last Thursday night. They were Charles E. Humphries and Richard H. Wallace.

Mr. Humphries, who was fifty-eight at the time of his death, lived at "Snug Harbor" farm on the Eastern shore of Maryland since 1923 when he moved away from Narberth. His connections with Borough governmental affairs started when he was elected to Council in 1914. In 1916 he was chosen as president of Council serving in that office for two years. His term immediately preceded that of the late W. R. D. Hall.

Mr. Humphries achieved considerable fame as a ball player. When a student at Princeton he caught on the nine and after returning to Narberth, was a catcher for many seasons with the Narberth Baseball Club.

Following his term in Council, Mr. Humphries served two years as Street Commissioner. He also ran for Tax Collector but was unsuccessful. His home in the Borough was at 108 South Narberth Avenue.

The funeral took place at 2 P. M. Monday from 1820 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia. Interment was private.

Mr. Humphries is survived by his widow, two sons and a daughter; Collwyn Humphries, who manages Snug Harbor; Charles Owen Humphries, an officer in the United States Navy, stationed at New London, and Mrs. Edith Boyd, of Harrisburg.

Richard Hooke Wallace had the honor to be the first president of the Narberth Borough Council, just after the incorporation of the Borough in 1895. He later served as Burgess beginning his term in 1904. Mr. Wallace was also a charter member of the Narberth Fire Company. When a resident of Narberth, Mr. Wallace lived at 228 Essex Avenue. One son, Richard Wallace, played first base with the Narberth ball club.

Another son, Brenton Wallace, is a partner in the real estate firm of Wallace & Warner.

Mr. Wallace had been ill for ten days, his death taking place in his seventy-fifth year. He was one of the founders of the Girard Life Insurance Company and was vice president of the company until his retirement two years ago. He was a member of the Union League for many years and an elder of the Tenth Presbyterian Church.

He is survived by two sons, Brenton and Richard, and by two daughters, Laurena and Ethel. His wife died in 1920. Funeral services took place on Monday.

Heads Bankers' Group

At a meeting of the Pennsylvania Bankers' Association on Thursday, Walter K. Hardt, of Haverford, was elected chairman of group one. Mr. Hardt is president of the Integrity Trust Company.

All Over 15 Cents

Two Philadelphians, Jacob Spector and Harry Lebon, were fined $8 each by Magistrate Stillwagon on Monday for disturbing the peace in Lower Merion Township. The peace was disturbed when the two men, both employed on a building operation in Narberth, fought over a debt of 15 cents. It was alleged Spector tried to deduct 15 cents from Lebon's pay envelope.

Englishman Speaks at Friends' Armistice Exercises

Armistice Day was fittingly observed by the school at its regular morning assembly. John Kay, formerly instructor of History and French at the Ackworth School, England, and who within two months has come to America as instructor at Westtown School, West Chester, Pa., gave the address. He forcefully described why war among nations must become unthinkable, and how much constructive work in the direction of peace has already been accomplished.

During the past week the boys have been outstandingly successful in all their games. The soccer team walked off with a 3 to 2 victory over the fast Friends' Select squad in town. All of the age-weight teams of smaller boys won their games and the climax was reached when the varsity won 6 to 0 from Chestnut Hill in a hard-played contest at Chestnut Hill on Friday. This is the third straight victory for the Friends' Central boys.

Branson DeCou, whose reputation is widespread among the schools for his "Dream Pictures"—a combination of music and beautifully-colored travel slides—presented on Friday morning "The Wonderlands of Africa." His pictures and music were enthusiastically received by the school and parents who attended.

Found Dead; Thought Suicide

W. Hall Brown, 35, of Derween Road and Winding Way, Cynwyd, was found dead in a room of the Penn Athletic Club last Thursday afternoon. Police are certain that he committed suicide. Hall was manager of the Philadelphia office of E. W. Clucas & Co., stock brokers, and was believed to have suffered heavy losses in the stock market. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Emily Terry Brown, and his 12-year-old stepdaughter, Jane.

Public Invited to Lecture

"Christian Science, a Reason for Christian Healing" is the subject of a lecture to be given by Bliss Knapp, C. S. B., of Brookline, Mass., in the edifice of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Ardmore, on Tuesday evening, November 26, at 8:15 o'clock.

Mr. Knapp is a member of the Board of Lectureship of the Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. The public is cordially invited.

Wynnewood Lot Improved

McMullin & McMullin have effected settlement for Henry G. Pearce for a lot of ground on Penn Street at Wynnewood containing a frontage of 126 feet and a depth of 220 feet. The purchaser, Mr. C. Dolad Schwartz, will improve the lot with a modern residence and garage for his own occupancy, a total investment of $75,000.

Buys Haverford Residence

Mrs. Henry S. Williams, of Rosemont, has purchased through Emilen & Co. from James D. Evans an attractive English-type residence consisting of fourteen rooms, four baths and a three-car garage. The property, with a frontage of 118 feet on Panmure Road, Haverford, adjoins the residences of Mrs. Walter W. Pharo and James W. Oakford and was held for sale at $60,000.

Community Spirit

To the Editor of "Our Town,"
Dear Sir:

Your editorial, "We Propound a Question," deserves the serious consideration of everyone who believes that the development of community spirit is essential to the future of Narberth. I have heard it said on numerous occasions that whatever else Narberth was able to do, it seemed unable to produce any "community spirit." Of the accuracy of that statement I have no desire to speak; that it should be made at all is itself significant. You very rightly say, "A capacity house was the answer to the pessimists . . ."

When you ask whether "it would not be an excellent thing if such a community service should be held regularly in the borough once a month on a Sunday evening?" there is only one answer: "Absolutely yes!" And the answer is made the more emphatic by your own suggestions concerning the nature and purpose of the meetings.

This whole subject is very close to what many of us feel is the only solution to the problem of adult education. That solution will never come with any degree of efficiency by a "transmission-system," which at present seems to be the only method we know—or at least employ. In this matter we are all guilty, Church and School and Club and Society alike. Each of us has thought we had a peculiar body of truth or sacred tradition to hand in toto to others. The failure of any one individual or any single group to receive this treasure has been attributed to their hardened hearts or dulled minds. How myopic! The gathering together of members of our community in such a service as you suggest would most surely have a very important result: the expression of a social group larger than any now existent in Narberth! It would seem hardly necessary to add that such a group would also be freer, more attractive and more natural to our community life.

As one thinks of the possibilities for such an expression it is difficult to restrain one's enthusiasm. Whatever else we do, let us not allow this opportune question to expend itself in rhetoric! If it be the province of the "Citizens' Committee" let them do something about it! If the Editor himself feels that he might call a meeting of those interested, let that be done.

Of course, it will be understood that this letter is purely personal and not officially representing a group, though I am quite positive that our own church would enthusiastically support such a community service.

Very cordially yours,
ROBERT E. KEIGHTON.

If you don't see what you want in this paper, ask for it—or, better still, write us about it.

We suspect it must be pretty trying for Mr. Fall and Mr. Doheny and others to drive up to a filling station for gas and have the polite attendant say, "How's the oil, mister?"

FORE AND AFT

An event of more than usual interest locally is the first Philadelphia showing of Owen Wister's "The Virginian" which opened on Monday at the Boyd. Probably the best known of Wister's novels, "The Virginian" is virile without being about "red-blooded he-men" and is a photo of the West when it was the West without falling into the class of "westerns" made obnoxious by Dr. Grey and others. The talkie version is in the hands of an excellent cast and should meet with the same success accorded the book and play. Owen Wister, whose home is in Bryn Mawr, was recently awarded the Roosevelt medal as one who "caught an era in its flight and holds it for all to see." We haven't seen the picture, but expect to.

Third of the Philadelphia Orchestra radio concerts, events awaited by music lovers throughout the nation, will be given under the direction of Leopold Stokowski on December 8. Dr. Stokowski announces that the program will include the Hungarian March from "The Damnation of Faust," Berlioz; Symphony in D Minor, by Cesar Franck, in three movements—Lento, Allegro non troppo; Allegretto and Allegro non troppo—and a nocturne, "Fetes," by Debussy.

For the first time in its history, the Plays and Players this season is opening its performances to public attendance. Hitherto, these performances have been restricted to members of the club.

The 1929-30 season of the Plays and Players comprises eight plays, two of which have been given. A new play is presented each month, being given five performances. The first two performances are limited to attendance of club members, while the latter three performances are open to the public.

The new play scheduled by the Plays and Players is William Vaughan Moody's "The Faith Healer." It will be given its first Philadelphia performance on December 16 in the Playhouse, 1714 Delancey Place, Philadelphia.

The story of the play centers around a typical charlatan who plays upon the credulity and religious fanaticism of the intellectually mediocre.

In its thirty-second week of this season, the Hedgerow Theatre's program begins to show three nights a week scheduled for performances instead of the five nights as heretofore. Next week's schedule includes Wednesday, Friday and Saturday evenings. Subsequent weeks will include Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings. The curtailment of programs does not indicate a cessation of Hedgerow activities. On the contrary, it indicates the beginning of intensive rehearsals on plays to be presented at a Philadelphia theatre at Christmas matinees, new plays to be added to the repertory this winter and next season. Margaret Scott Oliver's dramatization of "Alice in Wonderland" and Lady Gregory's "The Dragon" are now in rehearsal for the Christmas matinees. Either Ibsen's "When We Dead Awake" or O'Neill's "The First Man" will be shortly added to the repertory.

For next Wednesday evening, November 27, the offering at Hedgerow is St. John Ervine's mirth-provoking comedy "Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary." This has been adjudged the funniest play among the Hedgerow comedies. The cast includes Dudley Vaughan as Mary Westlake, the English actress who upsets a quiet English countryside by being arbitrary, because "How would anyone know I was a great actress if I were not arbitrary." Jasper Deeter plays Mary Westlake's manager, Hobbs, who treats women "the way they ought to be treated—as if they weren't there." Others in the cast are Sue Platt, Ned Pyle, William Price, Ferd Nofer, Gretchen Anton-Smith and Miriam Phillips. Thursday night's presentation will be another comedy which had its world premiere recently at Hedgerow—"Sweeney," by Bella Cohen and Samuel Spewack. Ferd Nofer, Walter Hart, William Price and Sue Platt head a large cast. Saturday evening's presentation is Ferenc Molnar's "Liliom" with Harry Bellaver, Miriam Phillips, Dudley Vaughan and Jasper Deeter heading an interesting cast.

Thanksgiving Day

This Thanksgiving Day, thoughts of turkey and thanksgiving will be jostled, in the minds of many Main Line residents, by contemplation of bulls, bears and stocks. It has been said that only two per cent. of the United States' population has invested in securities but the wealthy Main Line's residents undoubtedly rate a greater percentage—although by no means so great as rumor has it.

Those who have lost—and those who have not—have much for which to be thankful. Ones inclined to challenge that statement are hereby referred to President Hoover's Thanksgiving proclamation, and to the evidence of their own good sense and senses. The Main Line's beautiful landscape and friendly neighbors and good government, the sky's smiling promise of better times to come, the testimony in one's own soul that hopes and aspirations can be achieved—these are but a few of many reasons for thanksgiving, and for believing with Browning: "God's in His Heaven all's well with the world."

The Big Game

Stuhldreher's Villanova Wildcats have achieved nationwide fame. Harmon's Haverford eleven has been defeated but once this season, and then by but one touchdown. This section is proud of both these teams. But—there is one game, just among the schoolboys, which eclipses in Main Line interest any of the college contests. This fray, clash, or call it what you will, takes place tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon at the Montgomery Avenue field in Ardmore between the high school teams of Lower Merion and Radnor Township.

It is the thirtieth meeting between these two schools, and never has there been a game that was "easy" for either the Maroon or the Red and White. The twenty-eighth and twenty-ninth games ended in absolute stalemates, scoreless ties. Which, team, if either, will master the other on this occasion? Thousands of persons are anxiously awaiting the opening whistle to find out.

On the records, Lower Merion has a slight edge on the visitors, but statistical predictions mean nothing when these rivals line up. It will be touch and go throughout all the periods; that can be depended upon. Shall we end with the bromidic expression—"May the best team win." After all, what else is there to say?

More Expression Needed

The ready response of the Junior Community Club of Narberth to the suggestion of Mrs. Henry Frye that the organization consider presentation of dramas, is gratifying to OUR TOWN. We shall await with interest further news of this venture into the realm of Thespis.

It is the belief of this writer that a community can never have too many reading circles, debating clubs, dramatic organizations or other literary or artistic groups. In a world that is becoming mechanistic and standardized altogether too swiftly, the town whose residents go in extensively for self-expression and cultural pursuits will stand out as a refreshing contrast.

Christmas Shopping

With the approach of Christmas, interest is again being fastened upon the purchasing and sending of gifts. Post office authorities request that those gifts which are to be mailed should be purchased soon, in order to prevent congestion and delay in mailing later. It has been estimated that the volume of mail in the holiday season increases 200 per cent.

Another phase of the Christmas shopping worth considering is this: Philadelphia stores provide beautiful and fascinating toy and gift assortments well worth seeing and purchasing but stores in this community are very much worth visiting also. They are able, because of their comparatively low rentals and organization expenses, to compete favorably with metropolitan stores; their stocks are in many cases equally varied and complete and their sales people and proprietors deserve community support—not only for the sake of neighborliness but because it is demonstrably more convenient and pleasant to patronize shops whose proprietors will make every effort to please, since they rely on well-pleased neighbors for future trade.

UNCLE CY'S COLUMN

Language.

By this time you are probably not a little fed up on the lists of annoyances, but, perhaps, you fail to realize that each one of them may be elaborated upon to fill a column and that alone is something!

My ears are very sensitive and any departure from the accepted standards of purity of speech grates on them like the grating of a taxicab's gears. Here around Philadelphia we hear many phrases that are the unwelcome gifts of the "Pennsylvania Dutch" and many that are due to nothing but carelessness.

The most common seems to be "he, she, or it don't," which is nearly inexcusable. One of my favorite "Dutch" antipathies is "any more" meaning "now." A typical sentence of this colloquialism is "Any more people don't seem to mind it." Isn't it awful?

The contractions such as "gotta," "gonna," etcetera, are painful. One time on shipboard I heard a flapper from somewhere near New York talking and jotted down some of her remarks phonetically in the margin of a book I was reading. The prize elision was "watteryugonnado." Another was "wynchu."

Almost all Americans abuse the word "got," which is also overworked by our English cousins. Of course there is no such word as "gotten" but it is now creeping into the dictionaries as a colloquial usage. My father used to offer my sisters a dollar for every time they heard him use "got" when he meant "have" and they earned very little that way.

A word I hate is "virtually" and I may say that virtually no newspaper has any article without it.

How many of you know how to use "shall," "will," "should," and "would"? If you do, you far surpass your compatriots, for these everyday words are not only murdered in speech but even in writing.

For correctness of etymological speaking I urge the study of Latin and Greek; for sheer purity and conciseness of English diction I recommend the exclusive speaking of French over an extended period, and for the continued pleasantness of our tongue I advise cotton in the ears of all who listen much to their neighbors.

I have always envied those who had the courage to speak English like an Englishman. I shouldn't dare. Yet it is not necessary to neigh like a Londoner any more than it is to sing through one's nose like a New England Yankee. There is a happy medium. I hope some day to achieve it.

Poetry.

Here is another verse by "Ellenor," whose last name I have asked permission to tell you is—Miller. A few weeks ago we had two poems of hers, presented to me by someone who read them and thought they were unusually good. They are! I have several more here but they have feet that are too long, I am informed, "for a 13-em column," whatever that is.

These are Miss Miller's first appearances in print, and if she gains later fame, I shall be very proud to have introduced her to you, my apathetic audience.

"TO A SEAGULL"

"Oh happy bird—you are not chained as I,
But in the open beauty of the sky
You wing your lonely way.
The wild winds toss you to and fro,
The bright waves show you where to go.
Oh, could I once such freedom know!
Child of the ocean spray!"

I long to take my way as free
As you, out to the open sea,
And yet I cannot go.
I must remain a slave; but you
Still take your way into the blue.
Oh, Seabird, take my soul with you.
And none need ever know.

Take it out where the waves are green,
Where white lace trims their satin sheen

Out where the wind blows free!
Whisper its secrets of ocean places,
Give it one glimpse of wee mermaid faces,
Teach it the life of wide watery spaces.
And bring it back happy, to me."

Junior High Beats Radnor in Last League Game

The Lower Merion Junior High machine scored its final league victory last Thursday at Radnor by completely outclassing the Junior High team from Wayne. The final score was 13 to 0, and Coach Mattis' team was master of the situation most of the game.

Over 500 Junior High pupils went in busses to Wayne to see the game and furnished plenty of peppy cheering to inspire their heroes to greater efforts.

Franklin Talley, angular quarterback, carried the ball over twice for touchdowns in the final half, each time from within the five-yard stripe. Captain Bob Taylor pulled a nice end run for the extra point.

Next season the Radnor team will play at Lower Merion, and the student body will come with the team.

The Junior High team finishes its season today up at Pottstown. In the seven games played so far they have piled up 238 points and have not been scored upon. They share the championship of the suburban Junior High School League with West Chester J. H.

Much November Rain

A total precipitation of 1.89 inches of rain fell during the last week, one of the wettest November periods in history, according to Charles Decker, U. S. Weather Observer, of Narberth. Beginning last Wednesday rain fell consecutively on three days, skipped a day, and then fell again in a downpour on Sunday and Monday. The latter day saw a precipitation of 1.31 inches. The week also had temperatures averaging about eight degrees above normal.

Two Have Scarlet Fever

One new case of scarlet fever was reported to Marvin E. Reynolds, Lower Merion health officer, from the South Ardmore district and another from the Bryn Mawr district. Other cases reported throughout the township are: Chickenpox, 5; measles, 6; mumps, 2; tuberculosis, 2; whooping cough, 1.

Climbed Pike's Peak Without Heating Motor, Says Clergyman on Tour

Paying high tribute to the economy and performance of the low-priced automobile, especially as a means of long-distance travel, the Rev. G. W. Gasque, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Incarnation, Atlanta, Ga., this week recited some of the accomplishments of his new six-cylinder Chevrolet coach on a recent 10,618-mile loop tour of the western half of the United States, during which he averaged 22.3 miles to the gallon of gas.

Accompanying Dr. Gasque on the seven weeks' adventure were Mrs. Gasque and their young daughter, Anna Lee.

The long trip was made on schedule time so that the clergyman could fill speaking engagements in prominent Episcopal churches along the way. The route led from Atlanta to Chicago, by way of Nashville, Evansville and Indianapolis, thence across the northwestern States to Seattle, down the Pacific coast through Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles and back home across the desert country of Arizona and New Mexico.

A highlight was the climb of Pike's Peak over a tortuous roadway that stretches thirteen miles along the mountainside. Dr. Gasque reports that the car carried its party to the summit without faltering and without heating the motor. Many other cars attempting the climb were forced to halt along the roadway to cool off before continuing, he said.

Dr. Gasque kept an expense book of the trip, which discloses interesting facts about the performance of the car. Having been newly-purchased when the trip began, the car was not extended during the first 500 miles of driving. During this period it averaged eighteen miles to the gallon, the book showed.

When the car was broken in, however, the gas mileage was greatly improved. For the entire 10,618 miles which included driving in cities and in open country, the Chevrolet consumed 476 gallons of fuel, an average of 22.3 miles to the gallon. The gas bill on the trip was $107.18. Sixteen and one-half gallons of lubricant were used, costing $22.25. The minister's book showed no expenditures for mechanical repairs.

A MORNING WITH THE WARBLERS

By William J. Serrill

President of the Community Health and Civic Association, and secretary of the Merion Cricket Club. Mr. Serrill, a naturalist for many years, resides in Haverford.

A morning with the warblers must begin early. Not having been to the theatre or the movies the night before, nor having played auction bridge until midnight, the warblers are awake and ready for breakfast before sun-up. Having gone to bed with the sun, or, perchance, having had a long journey on the night train, they are quite ready for the great luminary when he begins to peep above the northeastern horizon. Breakfast with the warblers is the chief meal of the day, and with a real understanding of the true principles of digestion, they like to chatter sociably during its progress. To view and to hear the warblers profitably and enjoyably one must visit them while they are engaged at this early morning meal.

It is the second week in May the season when, in the neighborhood of Philadelphia, the warbler migration is at its height. My companion and I, a half hour before sunrise, open the front door and step out. As the presence of warblers usually announces itself through the ear, we instinctively walk with the stealthy tread of the hunter; our steps are noiseless, and we do not speak, or if so, in subdued tones. Our lawn and familiar home neighborhood become invested with the glamour of the northern woods, where such stealthy progress, afoot or in canoe, is commonly practiced. This expectant, listening attitude, our quest of something wild in nature, and the hour of dawn amid the ineffable freshness and glory of a May morning, have conjoined to transport us into a world as different as may be from the humdrum world into which we daily enter. While our passage is noiseless, it must not be supposed that the outdoors is altogether quiet. By no means. The air is alive with bird songs and bird calls; the bubbling ripple of the house wren comes from the side of the porch; a wood thrush chants divinely from the maple on the edge of the lawn; a flicker laughs impudently from the tall tulip poplar; a robin sings, and across from the hedge row of a neighboring lawn come the notes of a Brown-thrasher. Of human noises there is none, save the rattle of the milkman's wagon down the side road. If we are to hear any warblers we must pick them out amid this early morning din; all the more reason why we, ourselves, should make no sound at all.

We make our way to a piece of woodland, some distance from our starting point, through which a brook meanders to empty its contents into a larger stream, or "creek" as it is colloquially known with us. As we go, we make mental note of all the birds we see or hear, so that, at the end of our walk, we may check them off on our printed list, and thus record the total number of birds seen or heard on this date. Even at the height of the warbler season the bird-lover does not ignore the other birds. Not having heard any warblers by the time we approach the woods, we begin to fear that it may be a poor morning for them. But we are soon undeceived. Before we enter the woods my companion, whose ear is keener and quicker than mine, says: "I hear a Chestnutside!" We follow this sound and by the time we see the bird we are quite within the woods. On first impression the forest seems comparatively birdless. But not so for long. "I see a Magnolia," I say. My companion quickly responds, "Here's a black-throated blue!" "And a black-throated green" he instantly adds. "There's a black-and-white on the oak trunk," I call out, and "here's a Parula!" We keep up this interchange as rapidly as we can speak, and before we realize it or can conceive how it happens we are in the midst of a perfect swarm of warblers. We did not see them arrive; we know not from what direction they came, but there is no doubt that they are here! We now gradually maneuver until we stand near the top of a wooded hillside which slopes to the bank of the creek. So located, many of the swarming warblers are on a level with, or even below, us; with trees or the earth for background, the birds may be much more clearly seen than when one looks at them against the sky. The forest trees are now clothed with only budding leaves. The fitting, restless birds may thus be easily seen. Quite different would it be if the leaves were fully expanded. The bird-lover prays for a late spring. He wants the trees relatively bare when the warblers come.

We stand thus on our wooded hillside, with field glasses to eyes, excitedly calling out the name of each warbler of a new species as he comes into view. Suddenly from my companion, "Listen! I hear a song like the black-and-white, but different." "Which direction?" I ask. "Over here on this beech tree," he replies, leaning forward and to one side, peering through his glasses. "I see it; it's a Cape May!" he calls triumphantly. A find, because of its rarity. After locating the Cape May and having a good look at him, I no sooner turn away than I shout, "Another find! Here's a Golden-wing!" "This is some morning!" comments my companion. In a few minutes, I exclaim: "Did you ever in your life see so many Myrtles?" "No," he answers, "I never did. And look at the Black-throated greens! And the Chestnutsides!" For some thirty minutes we thus stand, enthralled by the throng of exquisite creatures which literally fill the trees around us; and now, as mysteriously as they had appeared, they fade away. We do not see them go, nor know the direction in which they go. Quite suddenly we are aware that they have gone. With glowing hearts we take the footpath which skirts the creek.

New Feature Begins This Week—'Where to Go'

Complying with the request of scores of subscribers, this paper today publishes for the first time a calendar of coming plays, local movies or talkies and musical events under the heading, "Where to Go." Readers are requested to offer suggestions for the improvement of this feature.

in an endeavor to fill the void which professional artists are leaving as they "hit the trail" toward Hollywood.

The Junior group thrilled to a suggestion that they themselves undertake some form of dramatic expression. Mrs. Frye graciously offered to assist any endeavors of this nature, and Mrs. C. D. Goodwin, the club president, appointed a committee with Mrs. James D. Moore as chairman to consult with Mrs. Frye in selecting a play for production after the first of the year.

Collections are growing for the rummage sale which will be held at a Lancaster Avenue store in Ardmore on November 30. If your cellar contains any outcasts in the clothing or household trimmings line, a 'phone call to Narberth 4087-J after 6 o'clock any evening will bring a collector to your door. The removal of such "odds and ends" will probably be helpful to you and certainly to the rummage sale.

The club decided to devote one Thursday a month to Braille work for the blind, a feature of social service work which is sponsored by many women's organizations.

A social half hour during which refreshments were served closed the evening.

Sub-Juniors Plan Interesting Meeting

Miss Dorothy Holland, head of the English Department of the Lower Merion Senior High School, will speak at the next meeting of the Sub-Juniors, on Monday evening, November 25, at 7:30 in Elm Hall. Important business regarding plans for the year, as well as the completion of the sub-junior Red Cross work will precede the talk. Every member is requested to be present and should try to bring a friend.

Miss Helen Aiken, 406 Essex Avenue, chairman of the Membership Committee, announces that the drive for new members is still being conducted. All girls between the ages of 14-18 are invited to join.

We're expecting the Washington, D. C., hotel man to protest, any time now, against the Senate razzing the lobbyists this way, because it's hurting their business.

The FIRESIDE

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Jewell, of Sabine and Conway Avenues, are going to Chestertown, Md., for this week-end. Mr. Jewell is going hunting.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Stiefel, of Woodside Avenue, are entertaining a group of friends on Saturday evening with moving pictures of Yellowstone Park and the Grand Canyon, which they took on their trip to these places last summer. Later in the evening the guests will be entertained at bridge. Among the guests are Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Wilson, of Drexel Hill; Mr. and Mrs. William Phipps, of Stonehurst, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Laws, of Philadelphia.

Mr. Hammond and Fangsten Sullivan visited their mother, Mrs. F. O. Sullivan, of Essex Avenue, last week-end.

Miss Anne Compton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Compton, will have as her guests, Miss Emma Knowlton and Miss Jane Milar, of Sweetbriar College, Virginia, this week-end.

Mrs. Warren Tyson, of Haverford Avenue, entertained the members of her bridge club at lunch last Wednesday.

Mrs. J. H. Jewel, of Sabine and Conway Avenues, and Miss Mary Digby, of the Berkley Apartments, gave a surprise party to their parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Digby, at their home, on Wednesday evening, November 13, in honor of their twenty-ninth wedding anniversary.

Ned Bartlett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bartlett, of Merion Avenue, is going on a hunting trip in North Carolina over the Thanksgiving holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Kelly, of Price Avenue, will entertain their bridge club on Saturday. Among its members are Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Rudolph, Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Monnington, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Bartlett, Mr. and Mrs. J. Raymond Sharp, and Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Miller.

Mr. F. J. Campbell, of Iona Avenue, is attending the Confectioners' Convention in Atlantic City. He left last Monday and will probably remain for a week or more. Miss Margaret Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Campbell, is spending a few days in New York.

Mothers Hear Address On Training Children

year as a member of the staff of the Children's Aid Society of Pennsylvania, Doctor Taft declared that there is no short cut in child training. The only reason a child permanently changes his habits is because he himself really wants to do so. Force and punishment may compel obedience for a time, but the child can devise endless ways of punishing adults in return, and in the long run will usually have the upper hand if it becomes a race to see who can be most disagreeable.

The meeting, which was attended by nearly 150 mothers and fathers, was opened by a brief demonstration of the "Melody Way" of teaching music, under the direction of Mrs. Edna Grant Clark, with the assistance of four of her little pupils, the Misses Margaret Shaw, Betty McConnell, Molly Barlow and Sue Wilson.

A brief report of the work and plans of the Recreation Board was presented by Kenneth L. M. Pray.

Following the meeting a large number of mothers took advantage of the opportunity to talk with Doctor Taft, and a lively informal discussion followed.

Just because a Kansas City, Mo., man slapped his wife because she made a mistake in a bridge game she got a gun and shot him four times. Once would have been enough.

Police Reporter Contrasts Courtroom and Concert Hall

all classes, it seems, are here. It is a democratic gathering.

I puzzle over the essential difference between these people and the familiar crowd. It is obvious, of course, that they are here on a pleasant errand and the others never are. But the matter goes deeper than that. A small negro boy passes me in the corridor. I have seen his prototype many times in the Courtroom—a puzzled, surly, inarticulate little black boy, frequently bullied by men whose lack of human kindness is almost as enormous as their ingrained ignorance.

This lad is neither puzzled, surly nor inarticulate. The shackles of ignorance, his own or others, do not bind him. He is intelligent, capable of appreciation of the delicate gradations of tone and color in the compositions about to be played. And in him, humble member of a submerged and submissive race, I discover the secret of that subtle change in facial expressions. These people, through the medium of music, will soon open their eyes to beauty and allow it—for this evening, at least—to engulf them, to lift them from the earthly plane of a common life to the spiritual plane in which man's great moments are lived.

It is good to understand the music that is being played, to be able to analyze and criticize, to have an ear trained to correct an intelligent appreciation. But it is good, also, just to sit in the darkened auditorium and listen, to slough off the cares of every day, to open one's eyes to the beauty of those eager men and women on the stage performing for the very love of the thing, to let the sounds that come from that industrious fiddling and thumping and tootling enter one's soul; in short, to achieve the thing toward which all the effort, hard practice and performance are aimed—enjoyment of music.

The concert on Tuesday night was the first of the Main Line Orchestra's series of winter events. The soloist was Berta Levina, contralto, of the Philadelphia Grand Opera Company, who sang delightfully. Her first number was "Amour Viens Aider" from Saint-Saens' "Samson and Delilah"; her second a group of three songs—"Carnaval," by Foudrain; "Danza Danza," by Durante, and "Oh! Love But a Day," by Beach. She was accompanied in this group of songs by Rosetta Samuel French at the piano and sang two encores to the great delight of the audience. Her appearance was by way of being a small triumph.

Miss Ethel V. Thomas, a member of the orchestra, played a solo clarinet number, with orchestral accompaniment, and was received with enthusiastic applause. The number was "Larghetto" (from clarinet quintette) by Mozart.

The orchestra presented "Allegro Molto," by Handel, and "Sicilienne," by Bach, as its opening number and followed that with the second and third movements from the Italian Symphony by Mendelssohn—"Andante Con Molto" and "Con Molto Moderato"; "Suite in C," by Adam Carse, and the overture from Saint-Saens' "Princess Jaune." And if the police reporter enjoyed the Mendelssohn number and the music by Adam Carse and thought the orchestra was in its happiest mood in those two pieces, he is entitled to his opinion.

May he make obeisance to Adolph Vogel and the members of the orchestra for their contribution to his happiness and spiritual well-being.

PERCIVAL K. FROWERT

Percival K. Frowert, widely known advertising agent, was found dead in bed Sunday afternoon in his New York City home. A physician declared heart disease caused the death of Mr. Frowert, who formerly lived in Cynwyd.

Funeral services were held Tuesday at the home with burial in Laurel Hill Cemetery, Philadelphia.

Mr. Frowert is survived by a brother living in Narberth, Charles G. Frowert, 12 Shirley Road.

Library Notes

"One side goes uptown, the other side down,
The jolly old L takes you all over town."

This is what the reporter learned from the very first peep into the "Wonder City" (meaning New York, of course) written and illustrated by Lois Lenski, and only one of the 116 new books for children which make up the Library display in honor of Book Week. This year's exhibit is by general acclaim the most complete and the most attractive display that the Library has ever held, and the delight of the girls and boys in hovering over the books to decide which they will read first, certainly repays any efforts expended for the event.

Miss Follette, the Assistant Librarian, has prepared a very effective catalog of the entire list of new books, grouping them under such headings as, For Younger Children, For Girls, For Boys, For Both Girls and Boys, Poetry, Fairy Stories, Travels, Industries, etc. Anyone who is interested may have an opportunity to examine the catalog by asking for it at the desk.

A representative list of the books follows:

The Wonder City, by Lenski.
Little Black Nose, by Swift.
Funny Thing, by Wanda Gag.
Fairies and Chimneys, by Fyleman.
Forty Good Morning Tales, by Olcott.

Holiday Pond, by Patch.
Flint Heart, by Phillpotts.
Katrinka, by Haskell.
Miki, by Petersham.
Chinese Ink Stick, by Wiese.
Little Duke, by Younge.
Black Arrowhead, by Snedeker.
Courageous Companions, by Finger.
Circus Menageries, by Norwood.
Rusty Pete, by Fogler and Nicol.
Prince Jan, by Hooker.
Kristin, by White.
K. Blake's Way, by Ward.
Sky High, by Hodgins and Macoun.
Big Aviation Book for Boys, by Commander Byrd.
The Crooked Apple Tree, by Cornelia Meigs.
Jumping-off Place, by McNeeley.
Virginia's Bandit, by Singmaster.
Father Takes Us to Philadelphia, by Humphrey.
Human Geography, by Smith.
Adventures of Galley Jack, by Maxwell and Hill.

Carroll Park Transfer

J. Raymond Kelly has sold for Ben L. Carroll an all-stone, Colonial dwelling with a two-car detached garage, in Carroll Park, to an undisclosed purchaser. Property contains eight rooms and was held for sale at $15,500.

Wynnewood Plot Bought

Samuel C. Wagner, Jr., has purchased for Mr. Louis L. McIlhenney a plot of ground on Fairhill Road, Wynnewood, consisting of approximately one-half an acre, which was held for sale at $17,000. The seller, V. B. Holman, was represented in the transaction by Frank Zell.

Settlement Made

McMullin & McMullin have effected settlement for E. Burke Wilford for a tract of ground containing about three acres on Bryn Mawr Avenue at Wynnewood. The purchaser is Dr. T. Grier Miller, who will improve the tract with a residence and garage for his own occupancy which will represent an investment of $75,000.

Car Riders Win City Line Fight

Restoration of Service to City
Line Ordered by
P. S. C.

SUNDAY LOOP OPTIONAL

Restoration of Fifty-fourth Street trolley service to City Line was ordered by the Public Service Commission in Harrisburg last Tuesday. John R. K. Scott, who acted for residents of Bala-Cynwyd, Merion and Wynnefield in protesting the P. R. T. shortening of trolley route No. 70, declared on Thursday the action was at least partly a result of the appearance of an impressive number of local residents at the October 10 P. S. C. hearing in Philadelphia.

The commission's order requires the transit company to restore the northern (City Line) terminal of the Fifty-fourth Street route, and to discontinue, on week days, the loop installed September 9 at Overbrook Avenue and Fifty-fourth Street, which has required car riders to walk more than 600 feet to the old City Line terminus. Sunday use of the loop at Overbrook Avenue is permitted by the commission, since the bulk of the complaints were from week-day users of the line.

"Pedestrians using the roadway are subjected to the dangers of heavy automobile traffic on Fifty-fourth Street, which is a main thoroughfare for such traffic," the commission's decision states. "Conditions for pedestrian traffic on the street, it was contended, especially in inclement weather and during the winter season are bound to be such that the inconvenience of the walk from City Line Avenue to the loop is supplemented by actual hazards and dangers in traversing the highway.

"Under all the circumstances of the situation as it exists at present, the commission finds that the complaint is sustained. The company took a proper step in attempting to improve operating conditions by the establishment of a loop as the terminus of the line, but so long as conditions for pedestrian travel on Fifty-fourth Street between the loop and City Line Avenue remain as they are, the company is not justified in compelling its patrons to undergo the hazards and inconvenience that result therefrom. These conditions outweigh, in the commission's judgment, such advantages as accrue from the operation of the loop as a terminus, and will continue to outweigh them until roadway or sidewalk conditions on Fifty-fourth Street make it possible to use that thoroughfare for pedestrian traffic with safety and comfort.

"Complainants' counsel submitted a motion for an order by the commission to restore service on Fifty-fourth Street to the terminal point at City Line Avenue and the motion was held under consideration pending the filing of briefs by complainants and respondent. The commission grants the motion and therefore directs the respondent company to restore the service rendered on Fifty-fourth Street to City Line Avenue, with the exception of the operation of cars on Sundays. The record before the commission quite clearly indicates that practically all of the complaints were directed against week day traffic by regular patrons and that Sunday operation terminating at the loop, either by the operation of one-man or two-men cars, would not materially affect the regular patrons of the line. It is therefore optional with the respondent to make use of the loop for Sunday service if it so desires to arrange its schedules."

Receives Promotion

Frederic C. Wheeler, of Wynnewood, general manager of Mirkil, Valdes & Co., real estate, 1500 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, was recently elected secretary and treasurer of the company which has been prominently identified with the development of the city's central financial district and is rental agent for some of its largest office buildings.

Mr. Wheeler was graduated from Yale University in the class of 1916 and was a captain in the Marine Corps in the World War. He is a member of the First Troop, City Cavalry of Philadelphia, the Merion Cricket Club and the St. Anthony Club.

Concerning Contributions to American Red Cross

A small boy approached the Red Cross table at the post office and asked what it cost to become a member. The volunteer worker replied that the smallest membership was $1.00, at which the young face, so filled with enthusiasm, lost its gleam and a woe-filled voice said: "But I've only got 7 cents and I wanted to give it to the Red Cross!" The 7 cents were most gratefully accepted, with an explanation of just what his 7 cents would do toward help for some sick baby, some disabled veteran, or perhaps a little blind boy no bigger than himself.

The Narberth workers are grateful, too, for one $25 supporting membership, a few $10 sustaining and $5 contributing memberships that have been received, but they gladly accept the amount, whatever it may be, that someone "wants to give."

The booth at the station and the table at the post office are for the purpose of receiving memberships and contributions and if missed by the volunteer worker calling at the home—this is an excellent place to enroll.

The quota for Narberth is far from its goal and yet Narberth has a constant reminder of its duty to the Red Cross in the frequent presence of the Red Cross nurse, so active and of such benefit to this community. Join now!

Workers not having made a report may do so on Monday, November 25, at headquarters, Women's Community Club room, Elm Hall, from 10 to 5 o'clock. — Narberth Branch, American Red Cross.

Local delegates and visitors included Mrs. C. H. Woolmington, president of Mothers' Council; Mrs. M. H. Nordbloom, Mrs. T. U. Schock, Mrs. J. H. Patton, Mrs. H. B. Murray, Mrs. C. W. Graham and Miss Florence Pray.

The Methodist Bazaar

It is being broadcast
From near and from far,
That the Methodist ladies
Will hold a Bazaar.

They have held them before
In the years that are past.
But this one they say
Will be better than last.

And they are determined
Such values to give
That you will remember
As long as you live.

They are working so hard
For a church fine and new.
And it's walls are beginning
To come into view.

The Bazaar will be held
The seventh of December.
A date that is not
Very hard to remember.

They will serve a fine supper
We've heard it's been said.
And we hope all of Narberth
Will come to be fed.

And there will be things
That will greatly amuse.
And Christmas gifts many
From which you may choose.

And all who have helped
Will feel a glad thrill
When the church in its beauty
Stands up on the hill.

Through lovely-stained windows
Its bright lights will gleam.
When the church is completed
That was once but a dream.
MARGARET L. GRIFFITH.

Will Rogers Declines Dress Suit in Comedy Talker, 'See Paris'

In "They Had to See Paris," the Fox movietone all-talking comedy-drama shown today and tomorrow at the Narberth Theatre, Will Rogers declines to parade in a dress suit. He plays the role of Pike Peters, of Oklahoma, whose wife's social ambitions are several leaps ahead of her husband's.

The picture, Will Rogers' first all-talking one, is based on a story written by Homer Croy. The dialog was by Owen Davis, Sr., dean of American playwrights. Frank Borzage directed the production and Bernard Steel staged it.

The story deals with the modern rise to wealth of an Oklahoma family when an oil well comes in a gusher, and their desire to see Paris individually and collectively.

The trip is made in grand style, and once in the French metropolis Mrs. Peters is determined to marry her daughter to a title. She plunges into society in spite of the protests of her less-ambitious husband.

The events that follow are laughable as they are costly, and keep the family in a state of constant excitement.

The role of Pike Peters, who becomes a millionaire overnight, is enacted by Will Rogers, the best-known personality in the United States. Irene Rich portrays his wife, while the son and daughter are played by Owen Davis, Jr., and Marguerite Churchill. Others in the cast are Fifi Dorsay, Ivan Lebedeff and Rex Bell.

Benjamin Rush Chapter Hears Talk on Films

Mrs. S. Z. Shope was hostess to the Dr. Benjamin Rush Chapter, N. S. D. A. R., at her home, 108 Iona Avenue, Narberth, on Monday, November 18. The regent, Mrs. C. M. Irwin, presided and Mrs. John Nash, chapter chairman of Better Films, was in charge of the program. Invitations were extended to the Better Films chairmen of the Narberth Community Club, the American Legion Auxiliary and the Mothers' Council of the Narberth School to hear Mrs. John I. McGuigan, State chairman of Better Films. Mrs. McGuigan gave a very entertaining informal talk on the work toward better, cleaner motion pictures as carried on in the Daughters of the American Revolution and impressed upon her hearers the importance of supporting the better type of pictures, thereby encouraging the industry to produce first-class films.

The following, many of which have recently been, or soon will be shown at local theatres are on the approved list of films which is released each month by the D. A. R. Better Films Committee: Four Devils, Four Feathers, Salute, a Hint to Brides, The Argyle Case, Behind That Curtain, The Girl from Havana, Hunting the Hunter, They Had to See Paris and Frozen Justice.

Following Mrs. McGuigan's talk, Mrs. H. M. Chalfant gave a most interesting report of the State conference at Newcastle.

Egyptian Plans Special Holiday Bill; Secures Beck As Concert Organist

Otto Beck has been engaged as organist at the Egyptian Theatre, Bala-Cynwyd, according to Manager J. J. Conway. Renowned as a solo organist, Mr. Beck has appeared in the largest theatres of the Publix Circuit, and has broadcast over the National network.

Playing at the Egyptian the last three days of this week is "Our Modern Maidens," all-talking hit, starring Mr. and Mrs. (Joan Crawford) Doug Fairbanks, Jr., Rod LaRocque and Anita Page. Accompanying the feature is an all-talking comedy with Max Davidson, "Hurdy-Gurdy."

Following Monday and Tuesday, when Vilma Banky and James Hall will star in "This is Heaven," a special holiday showing is scheduled for Wednesday, Thanksgiving Day and Friday. On Thursday performances will be from 1 to 11 P. M., continuously. The features will include William Haines, Anita Page and Ernest Torrence in "Speedway"; Charles Chase in the all-talking comedy, "The Big Squawk"; a Grantland Rice Sportlight, and "Carl Emmy's Pets," said to be a very unusual and diverting screen offering.

Coming attractions will include "Madame X," with Ruth Chatterton, Raymond Hackett and Lewis Stone, to be shown commencing next Saturday, November 30; "Street Girl," "The Saturday Night Kid," "Sweetie," "The Love Doctor" and "The Mysterious Fu Manchu."

Woman's Clubs Attend
Meeting

MRS. NICHOLS SPEAKS

More than a hint of the Thanksgiving festival seemed to permeate the atmosphere at the Reciprocity Luncheon of the Women's Community Club of Narberth on Tuesday at Elm Hall when the club was hostess to many nearby club presidents. Mrs. W. Russell Green presided, and in asking for greeting from the several club presidents said, "You are more than welcome and the latch string is always out."

The following clubs responded: Ambler Colony Club, Mrs. Thomas Foulke; Bryn Mawr Woman's Club, Mrs. Goodwyn Davis; Bala-Cynwyd Woman's Club, Mrs. Charles Gibbon; Conshohocken Woman's Club, Mrs. George Light; Germantown Woman's Club, Mrs. William Craven; Monday Afternoon Club of Malvern, Mrs. W. B. Bartram; Review Club of Oak Lane, Mrs. William L. Holmes; New Century Club of West Chester, Mrs. John E. Johnson; Swarthmore Woman's Club, Mrs. Jesse Holmes; Hathaway Shakespeare Club, Mrs. Rapp. The guest speaker, Mrs. John Hanna Cross, said the people who affirm that women are more interested in their own small affairs must be wrong for in this one community this meeting proves that women are tremendously interested in the ideas and ideals of the present times and aware of the tremendous responsibility of both men and women combined together to carry them forward.

Mrs. Green in introducing Mrs. H. S. Prentis Nichols spoke of the love that her club children felt for her as their godmother. Mrs. Nichols read excerpts from Nancy Byrd Turner's poems and spoke of the author's early life, ending with her lovely poem "Goodnight."

The Ernest Gamble Concert which followed was a series of lovely living pictures dramatically portrayed with voice, violin and piano accompaniment. The table decorations were in the golden autumn flowers and candles, and Mrs. Suzanne Joret Gill and her hospitality committee were given a vote of thanks for the delicious luncheon served.

A telegram of sympathy was sent to Mrs. A. B. Ross, who was unable to be present on account of her husband's illness.

Awarded English Prize

Miss Emily Hope Allen, of Bryn Mawr and Radcliffe College, this week was awarded the Rose Many Crawshay prize for English literature for 1929 for work entitled "writings ascribed to Richard Rolle, Hermit of Hampole," published in America in 1927. The donor of the $485 (£100) prize was the British Academy.

Five-Year Development Plan for Girl Scouts

A five-year development plan, for "bigger and better Girl Scouting" was outlined at the annual banquet of the Philadelphia and Main Line Leaders' Association at the Bellevue last Monday night. Miss Doris Hough, of the National Staff of New York, was the speaker, and told how the Men's National Advisory Committee, feeling that Girl Scouting has the very best program for leisure hours to offer the growing girl, has guaranteed the $3,000,000 needed for the expansion.

The new plan will include a Camp Director to deal solely with camp matters; three Regional Directors in each of the eleven regions of the U. S.—to be in charge of camping, organization and training of leaders, instead of the one Director for all three activities as at present; enlargement of the Girl Scout magazine, "The American Girl," and enlargement of all training facilities for leaders. In this way, it is hoped that the goal of 500,000 Scouts in the United States in five years will be realized with ease—and perhaps exceeded!

A gift of $250,000 from John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was announced at the recent National Convention in New Orleans, Miss Hough said, bringing the Development Fund past the $1,500,000 mark already.

One thing which makes Girl Scouting so splendid for young girls, Miss Hough said, was the fact that it gives them such a healthy, happy outlook toward life and prepares them to meet almost any emergency with knowledge and a smile.

Headquarters for this district—District No. 8, of Philadelphia—are at 25 East Athens Avenue, Ardmore, where a Field Captain is in charge, ready to organize troops and answer any questions.

In Colonial Village

J. Howard Mecke, Jr., has sold to Dr. Richard C. Norris, of Philadelphia, the new Colonial residence known as "Two Acres" on General Lafayette Road in the Colonial Village, north of Wayne, which property adjoins that recently sold to Dr. G. A. Van Lennep. After an addition is completed the new purchaser will occupy the premises; the price paid having been $52,500.

Dr. Fenwick Sells Home

Emilen & Co. has sold to an undisclosed purchaser for Dr. Charles Fenwick a new stone Colonial house at the corner of Morris Avenue and Pennstone Road, Bryn Mawr, with about one acre of ground and a stream. The house contains ten rooms, three baths and a two-car garage. It is one of several properties designed by Ralph Colton on this tract and was held for sale at $45,000.

Leaves $50,000 to Mother

The will of Winthrop Percy Smith, late of Lower Merion, admitted to probate at Norristown, disposes of an estate valued at $50,000, which he gives to his mother.

Property held in trust for the testator, but over which he has been given the right to make testamentary disposition, he places in trust for the life benefit of his sisters and their children. The Pennsylvania Company is named executor of the will, executed May 17, 1923.

Hurt in Red Cross Work

Mrs. George W. Michener, 106 Elmwood Avenue, Narberth, broke her right arm last week while aiding the Red Cross Roll Call. In making visits to prospective contributors on Elmwood Avenue, she caught her foot on the root of a tree, and fell, breaking her arm.

A scientist announces that death theoretically is not inevitable. Still it might be well to continue to step lively while crossing the street.

A man was arrested in a hotel the other day for throwing the furniture out of the window. It's pretty hard sometimes to find those collar buttons.

Menges-Krout

The marriage of Miss Louise Krout, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Krout, of 520 Essex Avenue, to Mr. Elmer Menges, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Menges, of Bermudian, Pa., will take place at 7 o'clock on Monday, November 25, at the Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, Narberth. The Rev. Cletus A. Senft, pastor of the church, will perform the ceremony.

Miss Helen Krout, sister of the bride, will be the maid of honor. Miss Blanche Menges, of York, Pa., and Miss Mildred Raffensperger, of Madison, N. J., will be the bridesmaids.

Mr. David Groshens, of Glenside, Pa., will be the best man, and Mr. Elwood Senft, of Narberth, and Mr. Harry Wagner, Jr., of Melrose Park, will be the ushers. Mrs. Ralph Lewars, of Philadelphia, will be the organist and Mrs. C. A. Senft, wife of the pastor, the soloist.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents will follow the ceremony.

After a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Menges will reside at 10 North York Road, Hatboro, Pa.

L. M. Disposes of Upper Darby, 13-2

dropped the ball through the bars for the extra point, making it four out of five for him this season. The rest that "Tip" got on the bench, or maybe it was splinters, helped him considerably and he came back into the lineup to help advance the ball up the field where he could carry it over for the second touchdown. In the final minutes of play, this same "Tip" would have duplicated his marvelous run at Abington a couple of weeks ago had not one of his men bumped him and interfered with his getaway. He was thrown out of bounds after he had intercepted an Upper Darby pass and advanced up the field fifteen or twenty yards. He was clear of the field when he was slowed up by one of his own men and then overtaken.

Keith Parks and Al Mandes played a whale of a game in the backfield for Coach Adam and they were responsible directly for the mighty advance of the team to their second score. Al is improving every game and his passing lately has been very good.

Upper Darby was the last barrier in the road before the team met the fast-stepping Radnor gang. The Maroon cleared the hurdle in fine style, and now are ready to face their traditional foe in the classic schoolboy game of the Philadelphia suburbs.

Guild to Meet

Announcement has been made of a directors' meeting of the Narberth Branch of the Needlework Guild of America, to be held at the home of Miss Laura May Brown, 123 Elmwood Avenue, on Wednesday. The December meeting will be omitted.

On the Gridiron

Davis-Elkins Downs Villanova;
'Egg' Morris Injured; Kohlhas, D'Amora; Haverford Loses.

By TOMMY MACKLIN
Villanova lost another hard-fought game last week when the Scarlet horde from Davis-Elkins, West Virginia, outscored them 12 to 6 at Franklin Field before a throng of some 20,000 people. Coach Stuhldreher's eleven played a fine game against a more experienced team and with a bit of luck might have won.

Morgan played a first-class game in the backfield for Villanova, as did Captain Melanson. Mitchell did some wonderful punting for the visiting eleven, and when his team could not gain consistently he dropped back and kicked the ball well out of danger.

Davis-Elkins is one of the few undefeated teams in the country.

The news that Captain "Egg" Morris is out of the game for the remaining fracas of the season with Delaware is sad news to the followers of the Haverford College team. This will make the going much more difficult for Coach Harmon's eleven, and may result in another loss for his team. His wonderful punting alone would take the heart out of many an opponent, not to mention his ball-carrying ability and defensive strength. It is too bad that "Egg" will not be able to play in this, the last football game of his college career. If our memory serves us aright, this is the first time in eight years of football that he has been forced to the sidelines and been unable to take part in a game.

"Brud Kohlhas, quarterback for the Annapolis eleven, has returned to his team after a painful elbow injury suffered in the Navy—U. of P. game three weeks ago at Franklin Field. Kohlhas has not had as good luck at Annapolis as he had when at Lower Merion in the matter of injuries. Last year he was injured just when he was about to take his regular turn in the Navy backfield. And this year, he was going good when he got hurt, and had to be carried from the game. From the manner in which he was advancing the ball down the field that afternoon, it is quite possible that Navy would have scored within a few minutes. But such is the game.

Al D'Amora, the fighting son of Italy, has been playing a whale of a game at center for the Maroon of Lower Merion this season. Only two poor passes have been shot back from the scrimmage line this season, and neither of them caused any serious results. As a defender against forward pass attacks, "Day" is a wonder. As Coach Adam says, "He seems to smell 'em coming." He has intercepted a dozen or more during the eight games his team has played, and that is some record for a roving center. Along with Captain Scott, "Day" hacks up the line in fine style, and on offense he is plugging along all the time. Along with his doughty captain, this Merionite is completing five successive years as varsity member of athletic teams in the Junior and Senior High Schools. He has starred in both basketball and football, and is probably the most dependable athlete day in and day out that L. M. has had in a long time. "Day" has not failed in a pinch yet, and is in there giving his best at all times.

If Al Mandes plays as well tomorrow as he did at Norristown and Upper Darby, all we have to say is "Goodbye, Radnor." Mandes is coming along fast.

Play Postponed

On account of the illness of the coach, the annual production of the St. Margaret's Dramatic Society will be given in January instead of the latter part of this month as originally planned.

The "MASTER MOCCASIN"
For Red-Blooded Boys

A most careful study of Boys' Feet showed us that there are five common foot abuses in the formative years of youth which lead to permanent foot ills. "Master Moccasins" are designed to protect your boy's feet against these abuses, and therefore can be said to have five major points:

ONE

Proper length—toe to ball—room to grow.

TWO

Flexible arch spring—allows muscle development.

THREE

Inside heel support—relieving arch strain.

FOUR

Straight outside tread—perfect balance.

FIVE

Fit snug without binding. We carry these unusual shoes in all sizes and widths. Come in and get your boy a pair TODAY.
